

Combating Infectious Diseases: Legal, Institutional and Administrative Aspects

The project deals with the current legal and institutional status concerning prevention and combating of communicable diseases in Greece, as well as with the respective regulations in other European countries and the relevant international provisions and efforts. It elaborates the possibilities for improving and modernizing the current national legislation, as well as for developing and strengthening international cooperation on the effective control of transmissible diseases. The project has been financed by the Hellenic Ministry of Economy and Finance.